

A Gift for the Future

I am writing to let you know of a new endeavour at Worth that will make a life-changing difference to talented young people.

Through a new bursary programme, Worth would like to open its doors to bright, talented, hardworking boys and girls who would otherwise never have access to the type of education our school can provide. These bursaries will transform the lives of these children by raising their aspirations and changing their future life choices – they will also help our community to share in a wider vision of the world around them and to prepare for life in a world of diversity and change.

The children chosen will be those who aspire to more than they are currently allowed to dream. These boys and girls will enrich our academic, sporting and creative departments with their abilities, talents and drive. Their inclusion in our community will be of benefit to the children themselves, to Worth School and Abbey and ultimately to the world beyond our classrooms, sporting fields and performance areas.

Whilst the school already has a well-established programme of Scholarships/Bursaries, it is obviously limited in what it can provide out of our own resources. The plan, now, therefore, is to raise substantial additional funds to finance the much broader Bursaries programme described above. With this in mind, the Worth Development office is now launching this new legacy appeal, with the enclosed brochure, through which people can contribute via their Wills. Legacy pledges of any size will be gratefully received.

As Chairman of the Worth Society, I ask you to join me in supporting this outstanding initiative through the gift of a legacy pledge. Many of us cannot give in our lifetimes, but through a gift in our Wills can make wonderful donation to the future. As a former pupil you know what a unique and inspiring school this is, and I very much hope our alumni will want to help those who could benefit the most but need full financial support.

Yours sincerely
